Experience

Career Break for Family and Professional Development   September 2019 – Present

I took the opportunity of my career break for family responsibilities to pursue my long-term interest in programming. Alongside taking care of my family, I spent a few years self-learning the basic concepts of computer science and attempting to self-learn coding languages. However, I came to realize that signing up for a coding bootcamp would yield a more efficient and comprehensive return on my investment. When the time had ripened, I enrolled in the Full Stack Coding Bootcamp with the University of California, Berkeley. Despite knowing in advance that the bootcamp was on a pass/no-pass basis, I dedicated myself fully and pushed myself to my maximum capacity, resulting in an overall course grade of 100%.
